MUN's Folklore and Language Archive needs an old, *still-working* BetaMax player. Beta was the Sony-developed competitor to VHS as a home-video format. Beta lost that war but many people kept using Beta machines for a decade or more, even after the whole videotape thing was washed to sea by DVDs. The Archive has the opportunity to copy some important videos from the 1980s and they are on Beta. The Archive's old BetaCord machine has died. If you have a working one and are willing to donate it you can call Pauline Cox (Archivist) at 864-8401.
